I am directed to refer to your letter No.1493-VIII, dated the 11th March 1950 on the above subject and to say that the following varieties of clays which are generlly used in the preparation of ordinary bricks and tiles, and domestic hollow-earthern ware should be considered as falling under "ordinary clays".

1. Tank Silt.
2. Brick and tile clays.
3. Pottery clays.
4. Earthy coloured clays.
5. Kalek clayey soils.

2. As regards ORDINARY SAND, I am to state that impure sands such as those occuring along river bdds, used fort structural purposes like the making of morter etc., should be considered as falling under "Ordinary sand". Pure, white, granular sands suitable for making glass, and beach sands consisting mainly of economic minerals like monazite, ilmenite, garnet etc., do not come under this category.
